The Student Lecture Forum seeks to foster a vibrant and student-led intellectual climate at Colgate University. Through identifying engaged students and providing them with a venue where they can passionately pursue their intellectual interests outside of the classroom, the Student Lecture Forum intends to stimulate the everyday life of the University towards the end of the ideal collegiate environment.

For Colgate University to become the University it aspires to be, a place where intellectual discourse is customary and the traditional division between the academic and social life of a student is removed entirely, the student body must take the initiative of creating and organizing events and institutions that promote this goal in a positive and productive manner. The Student Lecture Forum believes that the potential for this University is clear.
